BUREAU OF NAVIGATION,
NAVY DEPARTMENT,

VERY'S NIGHT SIGNAL SYSTEM.

On and after September 1, 1881, all signals communicated at night, by means of Very's Signals, will be made strictly in accordance with the Rules hereto appended. Such parts of Circular Order No. 31, Bureau of Navigation, October 10, 1877, as conflict with these rules, and the printed instructions for the use of Very's Night Signals, issued in 1877, are hereby rescinded. Commanding officers of naval vessels will cause a copy of the accompanying instructions to be inserted in the U. S. Naval Signal Book.

WM. D. WHITING,
Chief of Bureau of Navigation.

Very's Night Signal System.

Note.—The letter R. stands for Red, and the letter G. for Green, and each letter designates a separate star or cartridge. Odd numbers commence with Red, even ones with Green.

1.—R. G. G.	2.—G R. R.
3.—R. R. G.	4.—G. G. R.
5.—R. R. R.	6.—G. G. G.
7.—R. G. R.	8.—G. R. G.
9.—{R. G.} R.	0.—{R. G.} G.

The Answering, or, I Understand. } G.

The Repeating, or, I Do Not Understand. } R.

The Interrogatory. {R. G.} G.

The Numeral. {R. G.} {R. G.}

The Signal of Execution,—a Rocket.

The General Call,—a Rocket followed by G.

The Division, Squadron or Ship's Call,—The "Number" of Division, Squadron or Ship.

The Message Call,—G. without the Rocket.

Division, Squadron and Ship's numbers are so denoted by being immediately preceded by a rocket. Example.—Ajax. Rocket R. G. G.

Tactical, evolutionary and drill signals, and all signals involving the movement of vessels or of bodies of men, are to be considered Preparatory. The rocket denotes execution without repeating the signal. All other signals implying movement are intended for immediate execution, unless the message itself states or distinctly implies a lapse of time before execution. Example. "Send all boats ashore armed and equipped for immediate service." Obedience of this order will commence only on the appearance of the rocket. The signal itself being Preparatory. "Send a boat." This order will be executed at once, whether a rocket follows the signal or not. In this case a rocket would denote urgency.

All night signal messages, whatever their nature, require an immediate response. If the message is understood, the immediate response will be G; if not understood, it will be R.

RULES FOR SIGNALING.

RULE I.—A vessel desiring to exchange signals at night will commence by making a "Call." This signal will be repeated at intervals of about three minutes until it is answered.

NOTE.—It will be noticed that there are three kinds of Calls. First. The General Call, which is to all vessels that may be within signal distance. Any vessel seeing this Call will answer at once, without regard to the actions of other vessels. Second. The Division, Squadron or Ship's Call, which is addressed to a particular vessel or group. This Call will only be answered by the chief of the group or the single vessel called. Third. The Message Call, which denotes the desire to communicate a second message to the same vessel or group to which a preceding signal has been made. It will be answered only by the vessel previously addressed. In case no previous signals have been made, the Message Call may be used instead of the General Call, and will be so considered and answered by all.

RULE II.—Upon seeing a "Call," all vessels to whom it may be addressed will respond by making the "Answering."

RULE III.—Every distinct message must be preceded by a "Call" and the "Answering."

EXAMPLE.—Suppose the Alert to arrive off a port at night where the Flag-ship Antietam, the Alaska and the Adams are at anchor. The Alert makes the "General" (or she may make the message) Call. The other ships immediately make "Answering." The Alert then makes her number, (Rocket 5.) The other ships answer. The Flag-ship then makes her number. Alert answers. The Alaska being next in rank makes her number. Alert answers. The Adams then makes her number. Alert answers. Alert then calls the Flag-ship. Antietam answers. Alert asks permission to anchor. Antietam answers and then makes the affirmative. Alert answers. If the Alert should call the Flag-ship while either of the other vessels is making its number, such vessel will cease signaling at once, and not recommence as long as messages are interchanged. It may then, if desirable, call the Alert and make any necessary communication. But one course of messages is to be maintained at the same time.

RULE IV.—In making a combination or series of combinations, the stars will be projected deliberately one by one, (except the bracketed ones, which will be projected so nearly together as to both be seen at the same time,) right through from the first star to the last, without regard to time intervals either between the stars or between the combinations.

EXAMPLE.—Let it be required to make the signal 349. Load and fire deliberately, R. R. G. G. G. R. $\left\{ \begin{matrix} \text{R.} \\ \text{G.} \end{matrix} \right\}$ R. The stars appearing singly and in succession, except the bracketed pair, which are both to be seen at once.

RULE V.—The person receiving the message will note the stars as they appear, dividing them into groups of threes without any regard to time intervals, thus ascertaining the signal number.

NOTE.—Through some unforseen cause a long interval may elapse between two stars of a message. No account must be taken of this as long as it is less than about a minute. Again, a star may be broken by the shock of discharge and show several stars in the air.

Unless two colors are distinctly distinguished all stars appearing together are to be counted as only one star. Bracketed stars are always of both colors.

RULE VI.—When, after waiting about one minute, the receiver of the signal sees no more signal stars he will consider the signal finished. If the signal is understood, he will make the "Answering;" if it is not, he will make the "Repeating."

NOTE.—As a guide to the receiver, it will be remembered that in all signals from the General Code there are either nine or twelve stars, (not counting the Interrogatory or Numeral.) He can, therefore, make a close estimate as to the last star of a signal, and answer accordingly.

RULE VII.—If during the course of a signal the receiver is led to believe that either he or the sender has made a mistake, or if confusion of any kind arises he will at once make the "Repeating."

RULE VIII.—If during the course of a signal the sender sees the "Repeating," he will at once stop, wait about one minute, and then recommence the signal from the beginning. If at the close of a message he sees the "Repeating" instead of the "Answering" he will recommence the signal at once, from the beginning.

RULE IX.—If, while making a signal, the sender makes a mistake, he will at once stop and wait for the "Repeating," when he will recommence from the beginning.

NOTE.—It will be noticed that unless the mistake occurs at the ninth or the twelfth star, the signal cannot be read as the record is incomplete; therefore the receiver is bound to make the Repeating. If the mistake is with the ninth or the twelfth star, fire one more and then wait. This matter of the self detection of mistakes is one of the greatest advantages of the system. By any other night system, a mistake made leads to the transmission of a wrong signal, which may, on occasions, be fatal.

RULE X.—The red star made and repeated as a "Call" without the rocket is a signal of distress and need of immediate assistance. It is of especial value in cases of ships getting ashore within signal distance at night, or in case of fire.

If it becomes necessary at any time to put signal messages in cipher, the combinations of stars denoting the different figures are on no account to be altered in accomplishing the object, as such a method with any system is almost certain to lead to confusion and misunderstanding.

INTRODUCTION.

The Signal Code of the Navy is comprised in two books—a General Signal Book and a Tactical Signal Book.

The General Signal Book contains a collection of complete sentences, (arranged in the alphabetical order of their leading words, and repeated under the head of one or more of their principal words,) a telegraphic dictionary, and a geographical list of the names of places.

The numbers assigned to each signal-sentence are placed in regular order in the left-hand column of each page, under the heading "Signal Nos."

The number of each sentence that is repeated is placed in the right-hand column, under the heading "Reference Nos." The sentences are arranged, with reference to their respective principal words, in alphabetical order. Where there are more principal words than one, they are placed in the column next to the right, under the heading "Index words," in alphabetical order. For instance: under "Anchor" will be found the signal "Anchor at the mouth of the river," and in the index column will be found the principal words, "mouth," "river," the use of the "index words" being to facilitate the finding of the signal among many under the same leading word. In searching for a sentence in the Signal Book, turn to one of the principal words, in its proper alphabetical order, and run the eye down the column of index-words on the right until another of the principal words is found. If an original signal, the number will be found in the left-hand column; if a repeated signal, the number will be found in the reference-column on the right-hand side.

In reading signals, seek the number in the left-hand column.

DAY-SIGNALS.

Signal-numbers will be made by hoisting the numeral-flags representing the required number one above the other, units place always being the lower numeral. Should the signal-number be composed of two or more numerals of the same name, the first flag hoisted representing that numeral will be repeated in its proper place by the repeating-pennant answering to its position in the hoist; for instance: 2323 (signal-number) would be No. 2, No. 3, first repeater, second repeater.

Vessels so situated as to screen signals made from or to a flag-ship should repeat such signals.

When a vessel of a fleet repeats a general signal, she will exhibit the "first repeater" above it, to show that it is a repeated signal.

Should it be a signal to a particular vessel that is repeated, then the repeating vessel will exhibit that vessel's distinguishing-pennant or number at another part of the vessel, in addition to the "first repeater" above the signal.

When a signal, made from any division, squadron, or vessel to the commander-in-chief, IS REPEATED by an intermediate vessel, the repeating vessel must exhibit the "first repeater" above the signal and the number or distinguishing-pennant of the division, squadron, or vessel from which the signal comes at another part of the vessel.

When a vessel to which a repeated signal is addressed answers, the repeating vessel will haul the signal down, which will be the answer to the vessel by which the signal was made.

In case the vessel which made the signal does not haul it down after the repeating vessel hauls down, then the repeating vessel will hoist the number or distinguishing-pennant of the vessel that made the signal, with the answering-pennant below, both of which shall be kept flying until that vessel hauls down the signal.

The ANSWERING-PENNANT should be run close up to the truck, yard-arm, or flag-staff in answering signals, and kept there until the signal is hauled down. In answering telegraphic signals, however, the answering-pennant should be hauled down only half way, while the telegraph flag is kept flying, and run close up in answer to each signal made.

All signals are to be answered by the vessels, squadrons, or divisions to which they are made as soon as they are read and the meaning understood.

In case they are not understood, a signal to that effect will be hoisted immediately in place of the answering-pennant.

The PREPARATORY PENNANT hoisted over a signal, or at any part of the ship, at the same time a signal is made, will mean prepare to execute the signal now shown as soon as the signal of execution is made and hauled down.

SIGNALS OF EXECUTION are all signals made without the preparatory above, and the execution commences as soon as the signal is started from the truck to be hauled down.

The PREPARATORY SIGNAL should be hoisted in ample time to admit of all the necessary preparations being made before the signal of execution is hoisted; for ordinary routine evolutions fifteen (15) minutes should be allowed.

A distinguishing-pennant under a signal denotes exemption from obedience to signal.

The INTERROGATORY-PENNANT hoisted above, or shown at the same time with, any signal, changes it to the interrogatory form; for example, the signal "Land I see," with the interrogatory-pennant above, would mean, "Land do you see?" or, hoisted above the signal "Loose sails," "May I loose sails?"

The NUMERAL-PENNANT must be hoisted over or under signals as hereafter directed, when indicating numbers relating to distances, latitudes, longitudes, variation of the compass, &c., referred to by a signal at the time exhibited or previously made.

In reporting MIXED NUMERALS, as degrees and minutes, hours and minutes, pounds and ounces, &c., the answering-pennant will be hoisted between the numbers representing the degrees and minutes, &c., the greater quantity, as degrees, hours, pounds, &c., being above the answering-pennant, and the lesser quantity, as minutes, ounces, &c., below.

In reporting LATITUDE or LONGITUDE, the numeral-pennant will be hoisted above the signal-numbers for north latitude or east longitude, and below for south latitude or west longitude.

In reporting VARIATION of the COMPASS, the numeral-pennant above will indicate easterly, and below, westerly variation in degrees and minutes.

The TIME of DAY by signal is reported with the numeral-pennant above when representing a. m. and below for p. m. time. Twelve o'clock noon will be reported as p. m. and 12 midnight as a. m. time.

In reporting SOUNDINGS, the numeral-pennant over will represent the number of fathoms where bottom is reached, and below will be the number of fathoms of line out where bottom is not reached.

As a MEAL-pennant the numeral is kept up during meal-hours on board all vessels in commission when at anchor.

The CORNET hoisted at any part of the ship is a peremptory order for all officers and others absent from the vessel to return at once. In case no one is absent at the time it is hoisted, it will indicate that the vessel is under sailing-orders and about to get under way.

The CORNET above and in the same hoist with a signal, indicates a vessel's number; below, and in the same hoist, it indicates the vessel's private number.

VESSELS' NUMBERS.—Vessels of the Navy, when meeting, will always show either their number or distinguishing-pennants as soon as within signal-distance. As one vessel reads the number of ANOTHER she will hoist the answering-pennant, but neither vessel will haul down her number until it has been answered by the answering-pennant from the other vessel.

When telegraphic or geographical signals are made, their indicating flag or pennant must be hoisted on the same mast, and will distinguish as such only those signals made on that mast. Their meanings will be found in the telegraphic dictionary or the geographical list.

Signals made from another part of the ship without distinguishing-flag are independent of all others.

The GUARD or GUIDE FLAG hoisted on board any vessel at anchor will indicate that she is charged with the guard-duty of the fleet division, or squadron to which she belongs. The flag should be hoisted at the fore or at one of the yard-arms and kept up night and day, and the duties will be such as may be laid down by the senior officer.

The JACK hoisted at the fore is the signal that a pilot is wanted.

Firing a gun calls attention to it.

The DISPATCH-FLAG will be hoisted forward on board of dispatch-vessels, to indicate to officers who may be fallen in with the nature of the service the vessel is upon.

No vessel should hoist the dispatch-flag without proper authority, but when it is hoisted she should not be interfered with by any officer junior to the one by whom she is sent on service.

A vessel engaged in carrying dispatches or orders through a fleet should hoist below the dispatch-flag the distinguishing-pennants of the vessels to which she is bound, in inverse order; that is, the pennant of the vessel first to be spoken will be the lowest in the hoist; and so soon as a vessel has been spoken her pennant must be unbent.

The GENERAL-RECALL flag, hoisted at any time by the senior officer present, is to be considered as a peremptory order for all vessels or boats absent in chase or on any duty whatever to return at once to their duty, vessels, or stations. The recall-flag should not be hauled down until the signal is obeyed.

BOATS' RECALLS.

Boats will be recalled by hoisting their recalls, which will be kept up until the boat gets under way to obey the signal.

The QUARANTINE-FLAG hoisted on board a vessel denotes that she is in quarantine, and subject to all the quarantine regulations. It should be kept up day and night, and carried by all her boats.

The POWDER-FLAG will be exhibited prominently on all vessels engaged in handling powder or loaded shell, and in all boats, lighters, &c., with powder or filled shell on board.

The CHURCH-PENNANT will be hoisted above the ensign during the continuance of divine service on board all vessels of the Navy.

The JACK at the mizzen-truck of a vessel will indicate that a COURT-MARTIAL or COURT of INQUIRY is sitting on board that vessel.

It will be hoisted and a gun fired when the court begins its session, and hauled down when it adjourns.

Distinguishing-pennants may be hoisted by vessels of the same fleet to distinguish each other when meeting at sea, or used over a signal to indicate the vessel to which a signal is made. It saves the signal-flags.

NIGHT-SIGNALS.

Night-signals consist of red, green, and white lights, and their various combinations representing the different numbers and pennants.

No repeaters are used.

The colors assimilate, as far as possible, with those of the day-signals.

Rockets at night take the places of the cornet and telegraphic flag by day.

DIRECTIONS FOR THE USE OF NIGHT-SIGNALS.

When ready to commence making night-signals, burn the preparatory, if the signals are to be general, but if made to a particular division, squadron, or vessel, burn the number of the division, squadron, or vessel, and then the preparatory. As soon as the preparatory is answered, proceed to burn in their order the lights corresponding to the numbers to be made.

There should be as uniform an interval of time between the extinguishment of one signal-light and the ignition of another as possible, not less than five (5) nor more than ten (10) seconds.

When the signal is completed the answer is made by either making the proper signal in reply or by burning the answering-light.

TELEGRAPHIC SIGNALS will be made at night by sending up a rocket and burning the preparatory; when answered, send up another rocket, then burn the numbers of the signal.

The end of each telegraphic number will be indicated by an interval of thirty (30) seconds.

In making a vessel's number, first burn the preparatory; when answered, send up a rocket and burn the regular number.

It will be observed that the difference between making a vessel's number at night and telegraphing is in the number of rockets used.

A rocket before a signal is the general number; after the signal it is the private number.

Dates will be signaled by the number of the day of the year, (see column "Day of year,") with the answering-pennant above; thus, June 3, would be answering-pennant above 155, which number in the column "Day of year" corresponds with June 3.

ARMY CODES.

[CONDENSED FROM THE "MANUAL OF SIGNALS" PREPARED BY BREVET BRIGADIER-GENERAL ALBERT J. MYER, CHIEF SIGNAL-OFFICER U. S. ARMY.]

The Army "Manual of Signals" is adopted as a book of reference for all matters pertaining to Army signals, and will be supplied to each vessel and command.

The following codes and instructions, condensed from the Army "Manual of Signals," are for reference for those who have had some previous knowledge of and been practically instructed in signaling. They are not intended for primary instruction.

Ciphers, either to be agreed upon by particular commanders or published generally through the command, must always be used in the transmission of messages of importance, or for any communication which might give information to the enemy.

Every signal-officer ought to be so instructed as to be able to devise in a few moments a cipher for this purpose, and to prepare at any time codes of signals of any given number of elements without reference to the established arbitrary codes.

GENERAL SIGNAL-SERVICE CODE.

ARMY AND NAVY.

An arrangement of two elements.

A 22	F 2221	K 2121	P 1212	U 112	Z 2222
B 2112	G 2211	L 221	Q 1211	V 1222	& 1111
C 121	H 122	M 1221	R 211	W 1121	ing 2212
D 222	I 1	N 11	S 212	X 2122	tion 1112
E 12	J 1122	O 21	T 2	Y 111

3. End of word.

33. End of sentence.

333. End of message.

22, 22, 22, 3. Signal of assent, "I understand;" or, "Message is received and understood;" or, "I see your signals," or affirmative generally.

22, 22, 22, 333. Cease signaling.

121, 121, 121, 3. Repeat.

21, 21, 21, 3. Error.

211, 211, 211, 3. Move a little to the right.

221, 221, 221, 3. Move a little to the left.

Flag, waved successively from side to side until attention is attracted, "Attention, look for signals from this point."

Numerals.

1. 21112 Wait a moment.
2. 12221 Are you ready?
3. 22122 I am ready.
4. 22212 Use short pole and small flag.
5. 22221 Use long pole and large flag.
6. 12222 Work faster.
7. 11222 Did you understand?
8. 11112 Use white flag.
9. 11211 Use black flag.
0. 22222 Use red flag.

When the numerals are used in transmitting messages as code-signals, they have the meanings given above, opposite each character.

Abbreviations.

a–after	b–before	c–can	h–have	n–not	r–are
t–the	u–you	ur–your	w–word	wi–with	y–why

The signal for "The address of message is now complete," is made thus: The flag, being in the first position, is dropped to the front, and then waved in full circles twice to the right, passing over the head. It then resumes the first position. The signal for "The message is signed as follows," is made thus: The flag, being in the first position, is dropped to the front, and then waved in full circles twice to the left, passing over the head; it then resumes the first position.

When numerals occur in messages and it is desired to send them in figures instead of words, the following signal will be made to indicate that "Numerals follow:"

The flag, being in the first position, is dropped directly to the front, and then moved in a horizontal plane to the right until it reaches a point at right angles with the line of work, when it is passed vertically over the head to a corresponding position on the left, and then brought to the front horizontally and returned to the first position.

The signal for "Numerals ended" is made in the same manner, only reversing the movements. These signals should always precede and follow numerals.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USING THE CODE.

The whole number opposite each letter stands for that letter.

The numbers are made by vertical motions of the flag or signal to the right or left or in front of a vertical position.

POSITIONS AND MOTIONS.

There are one (1) position and three (3) motions.

The FIRST POSITION is with the flag held directly above the head of the flagman, the butt of the staff at the height of the waist and grasped by both hands, the hands separated from each other about eighteen (18) inches.

To make the first motion, or "one," or "1," the flag is waved to the ground to the right and instantly brought to the first position.

To make the second motion, or "two," or "2," the flag is waved to the ground to the left and instantly brought to the first position.

To make the third motion, or "three," or "3," the flag is waved to the ground in front and instantly brought to the first position.

When the letter-number consists of more than one figure, the motions of the flag for each figure follow each other without any pause between.

TO SEND A MESSAGE.

First call "Attention" until seen and acknowledged by the opposite station.

The station called will answer by making the general signal for assent.

The communicating station returns the acknowledgment and then proceeds to transmit the message letter by letter.

When several vessels are present and it is desired to signal by the Army Code to a particular one, the first letter or letters of her name should be made until her attention is gained. In case she does not respond quickly, her distinguishing pennant or number should be hoisted.

For example, suppose the "Portsmouth" and "Plymouth" are present, the signals "Po" and "Pl" would be their respective designations.

If the message or any part of it has not been correctly received or is not understood, the receiving-station will make the signal for "Repeat," followed by the part of the message to be repeated, as before, or after, or between certain words. (See "Manual of Signals," under this heading.)

When making several signals at the same time, flags of different colors should be used, and each vessel when called should answer with and display a flag of the same color as that with which the signal is made, showing that the signal is understood as intended for that vessel.

RECORDING SIGNALS.

When two men are together on a station, one man looks through the glass and calls the numbers, as fast as seen, to the other, who writes them down.

Messages are thus recorded in the signal-numbers composing them.

When secret or cipher codes, codes devised for the occasion, or codes not before used, or when the commander wishes a message signaled of which he and his correspondent alone shall know the meaning, the message may be thus reduced to signal-numbers before being placed in the hands of the signalist, who thus becomes simply a medium for the transmission of the message, without knowledge of its contents. (See "Manual of Signals," under this heading.)

For day and night signals by vertical and horizontal motions, and for night-signals by flashes, see "Manual of Signals," under these headings.

APPLICATION OF THE ARMY CODE TO THE NAVAL SIGNAL BOOK OR THE TELEGRAPHIC DICTIONARY.

To make use of the Naval Signal Book or Telegraphic Dictionary, the numbers corresponding to those in the Signal Book may be made in the following manner:

The first nine letters of the alphabet, by the General Service Code, will indicate in regular order the nine digits, and the tenth letter will indicate 0. Thus:

1. A	22	6. F	2221
2. B	2112	7. G	2211
3. C	121	8. H	122
4. D	222	9. I	1
5. E	12	0. J	1122

After calling attention in the usual manner, the signal-officer will make one of the following signals, to show what book or code is used, viz:

T. D. U. for the Telegraphic Dictionary.

S. B. U. for the General Signal Book.

T. S. U. in case Tactical Signal Book is to be used.

G. L. U. in case Geographical List is to be used.

Then to make a general signal 2453 he will make S. B. U., and when answered will make B. D. E. C.

SIGNAL-DRILLS AND INSPECTIONS.

For the purpose of insuring skill in the use of signals and a proper care of the signal-apparatus, there will be at least one signal-drill and one inspection of equipments in each week, in accordance with the forms prescribed in the "Manual of Signals."

GENERAL DIRECTIONS TO BE OBSERVED IN USING THE SIGNAL BOOKS.

1. No additions, alterations, or erasures are to be made in the signal books without written authority from the Navy Department.

2. The numerical values assigned to the signal-symbols are to be preserved, and no changes are to be permitted.

3. No memoranda or notes are to be written on the inside covers, fly-leaves, or margins of the signal books.

4. The names of vessels of a fleet, division, or squadron, should be written in pencil on the blank spaces, in the table of "Distinguishingpennants" and "Distinguishing-lights," prepared for them opposite their respective pennants and distinguishing-lights.

5. At all times, either of peace or war, and whether in the presence of an enemy or stranger, or not, the signals for carrying on the ordinary routine duties of the service should be made and reported as they are recorded in the signal book, and with the values there assigned to the signal-symbols.

6. All line-officers, quartermasters, and signal-men should inform themselves of the respective values of the different symbols used in signaling, and instruct themselves in the use of the signal books and telegraphic dictionary. They should study the characteristic appearances and distinctions of the different day flags and pennants, the colors and combinations of colors of the different lights used in signaling at night, and the character and duration of the sounds used in signaling in fogs, to enable them to report promptly and correctly the numerical values of all signals.

7. All the means and appliances used in making, repeating, and answering signals should be kept at hand and in readiness for instant use.

8. All general signals should be answered as soon as they are understood, and those addressed to particular vessels, squadrons, or divisions should be answered by those vessels, squadrons, or divisions only.

9. When a signal is not understood, the fact should be reported immediately by signal as an answer to it.

FOG-SIGNAL SYMBOLS.

STEAM-WHISTLE OR FOG-HORN.

Numerals.

1. One short, sharp blast.
2. One long blast.
3. Two short, sharp blasts in succession.
4. Two long blasts in succession.
5. Three short, sharp blasts in succession.
6. Three long blasts in succession.
7. One short, sharp blast followed by one long blast.
8. One long blast followed by one short, sharp blast.
9. Two short, sharp blasts followed by one long blast.
0. Two long blasts followed by one short blast.

"ERROR-SIGNAL."—Six (6) short, sharp blasts.

"I DON'T UNDERSTAND."—Six (6) short, sharp blasts followed by one (1) long blast.

DURATIONS OF THE SOUNDS.

1. A short blast should be about five (5) seconds' duration, and should be made to sound sharp.

2. A long blast should be of not less than fifteen (15) nor more than twenty-five (25) seconds' duration, and should be modulated at the beginning and end of the blast.

3. The interval of time between the blasts of the same numeral should be about five (5) seconds, and should be uniform.

4. The interval of time between the completion of the blast or blasts representing a numeral and the commencement of the first blast of the succeeding numeral should be about ten (10) seconds.

THE PREPARATORY SIGNAL.

5. Consists of one (1) blast of about sixty (60) seconds, and it should in all cases be answered before the signal it precedes is made.

Two (2) such blasts, in quick succession, will indicate that telegraphic-signals are to be made.

Three (3) such blasts, in quick succession, will indicate that the Army-code is to be used.

Three (3) such blasts, in quick succession, followed immediately by one (1) blast of ten (10) seconds, will indicate that the Geographical List is to be used.

THE ANSWERING-SIGNAL.

6. Consists of one (1) sharp blast, of about five (5) seconds' duration. No signals should be answered until all the numerals constituting the numbers representing the signal-sentence shall have been made.

It may be assumed that the signal is complete at the expiration of about sixty (60) seconds after the sound of the last blast ceases.

7. When two or more numerals of the same value follow each other or occur in the same number, they must be repeated in the same manner as with (Coston) night-signals, as there are no "repeaters" among the symbols for fog-signals.

8. Before commencing the sounding of fog-signals the officer or other person stationed to attend at the steam-whistle must be careful to see that all the condensed steam is blown from the pipe. An assistant with a watch, furnished with a second-hand, must attend and announce to the operator the number and kind of blasts to be sounded as representations of each numeral of the intended signal.

When all the preliminaries are completed, sound the preparatory as already explained, and wait a reasonable time, not exceeding sixty (60) seconds, for an answer. If none is made in that time, repeat the preparatory until answered or you are satisfied that no vessel is within hearing distance.

As soon as an answer to the preparatory is heard, commence sounding the signal proper, as directed under "Duration of sounds," allowing an interval of about five (5) seconds between the different blasts of the same numeral, and of about ten (10) seconds between the different numerals of the same signal-number. If no answer is made within two (2) minutes after the completion of the signal, it may be presumed that it is not understood, and the signal should be repeated, commencing again with the preparatory blast.

9. The "error-signal" should be answered before repeating the signal to be made.

The signal "I don't understand" should be answered by the vessel signaling before recommencing the signal.

TO APPLY TO THE ARMY CODE.

10. The call or preparatory consists of three (3) blasts each of about sixty (60) seconds' duration, and in quick succession.

The answering-signal consists of one (1) sharp blast of about five (5) seconds' duration.

The blasts for signaling will be short, sharp, and of five (5) seconds' interval between the numerals of the same letter, the intervals between the succeeding blasts of the same numeral to be as short as possible in sounding.

The intervals between the letters to be about fifteen (15) seconds.

In making these signals greater reference must be made to the ear than to the watch for the proper intervals of time, but these should be as uniform as possible.

The general directions for the use of the Army Code will be followed in its use with the steam-whistle or fog-horn. The bell may also be used in the transmission of signals by this code.

11. Vessels, during a fog, will answer signals or sound their fog-horns in the order of their formation; if in natural order, No. 1 begins; if in reverse order, No. 12 begins, supposing there are twelve (12) vessels in the fleet. Two or more vessels should not make fog-signals at the same time.

12. The prescribed rules governing fog-signals, as set forth in General Order No. 34 of the Navy Department, date May 4, 1864, should be observed strictly at all times.

They are the following, viz:

"Rules governing fog-signals.

"FOG-SIGNALS.

"ARTICLE 10. Whenever there is a fog, whether by day or night, the fog-signals described below shall be carried and used, and shall be sounded ~~at least~~ every ~~five (5)~~ minutes, viz:

"(a) Steamships under way shall use a steam-whistle placed before the funnel, not less than eight (8) feet from the deck.

"(b) Sailing-ships under way shall use a fog-horn.

"(c) Steamships and sailing-ships when not under way shall use a bell."

13. A single, short, sharp blast of the steam-whistle or horn, or a few rapid strokes of the bell, repeated at the prescribed intervals, will meet the requirements of the regulation for indicating position during a fog.

14. Guns must be fired to give warning of danger during fogs and as signals of distress.

If fired as signals of distress, minute-guns should be fired until relief is obtained or the signal is answered by a gun.

If to give warning of a danger which makes it necessary to go about, two guns should be fired in quick succession.

Firing either great guns or musketry in quick succession during fogs will indicate action with or being attacked by the enemy.

Guns may also be used chronosemically in cases of extreme necessity, according to the method in "Myer's Manual of Signals," page 164.

ROUTINE FOR EXERCISES WITH SAIL.

LOOSING, FURLING, MAKING, OR SHORTENING SAIL IN A FLEET.

When the preparatory signal is made to loose or furl sails, either to dry or when making sail, the captains of the tops and other necessary ready-men should be sent aloft as the preparatory signal is hauled down. When they have made the necessary preparations they shall lay down into the tops or on deck.

If to loose, lay aloft sail-loosers the instant the signal of execution is started from the truck, yard-arm, or other place to which it may be hoisted.

As the top-men reach the tops, man the boom tricing-lines, trice up, lay out and loose, and when ready, let fall with the flag-ship, and, if so ordered, haul out by the bowlines and hoist away the head-sails; or, if to make sail, sheet home and hoist away.

In loosing to and furling from a bowline, all hands should be called and sent to their stations when the preparatory signal is hauled down.

When about to furl sails in obedience to orders by signal, the top-men and furlers of the fore and aft sails should be ordered aloft as the signal of execution is started from the truck, to be followed by the lower-yard men as soon as the men are well up. Trice up, lay out, and furl away, (regardless of the movements on board of the flag-ship,) lay in, down booms, lay down from aloft.

In furling from a bowline, immediately after the order aloft lower-yard men, the orders haul taut, clew up, and haul down should be given so that the sails may be ready for the men by the time they reach their stations on the yards and booms.

When shortening sail in a fleet in obedience to an order by signal, the sails ordered to be taken in should be clewed up or hauled down as the signal of execution comes down, and the men ordered aloft at the same time.

REEFING TOP-SAILS IN A FLEET.

When a general signal is made to reef top-sails, all hands should be instantly called, the gear led out clear and manned or attended, and everything made ready for bracing in and clewing down the top-sail yards, &c., and the top-men at their stations on deck ready to lay aloft at the moment the signal is started to be hauled down.

If the reefing is for exercise or competition, the top-men should be ordered in and off the yards and down on deck as soon as the reefs are taken in, and the top-sails hoisted and yards trimmed, regardless of the movements on board the flag-ship; but if the order is not for a trial of skill, the top-men should lay aloft, out on the yards, in and down from aloft and the top-sails hoisted with the flag-ship, to enable the vessels of the fleet the better to preserve their relative positions in the prescribed formation.

SENDING UP AND DOWN ROYAL AND TOP-GALLANT YARDS IN PORT, MORNING AND EVENING, WITH THE COLORS.

The ready-men are sent aloft and those on deck ordered to stand by to send the yards up or down, as the case may be, as the preparatory signal is being hauled down. In sending them down, beat the call as the signal of execution goes up. As the signal of execution is started from the truck, roll off, and at the third roll sway, lower away, &c., hauling down the colors at the same time.

In sending them up, commence preparations as soon as the preparatory signal is hauled down. As the signal of execution goes up, beat the call, sway out of the rigging or up and down, and aloft together.

As the signal of execution starts from the truck, roll off, and at the third roll sway across.

The preparatory signal for sending up or down yards should be made fifteen (15) minutes in advance of the time for making the executing-signal, so that all may be ready to sway at the same moment and at the time of hoisting or hauling down the colors.
